FLORAL tributes were paid to the martyrs of the Sepoy Mutiny that took place in Vellore Fort about 250 years ago on the same day. Vellore district collector P Kumaravel Pandian, SP S Selvakumar, and MLA P Karthikeyan paid tributes to the martyrs at the Sepoy Mutiny memorial pillar in the city on Saturday. The mutiny, which occurred on July 10, 1806, was the precursor to the first war of Independence of the country. Indians in the British army had revolted against new codes imposed by a British commander, resulting in the martyrdom in Vellore Fort. The event is remembered every year. Besides paying floral tributes, an art exhibition was also held in Vellore. Organised by Vellore chapter of Tamil

Nadu Science Forum (TNSF) and the Auxilium College, paintings of artist Nirmal on the Sepoy Mutiny were displayed at the office of Mahalir Thittam. Assistant project officer of Mahalir Thittam, Thirumeni, inaugurated the event, in which, the principal of Auxilium College, Jayasanthi, and vice president of TNSF SN Janardhanan also participated.
