PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

The journey to freedom and liberation begins with education. This also paves the way for women's economic empowerment. As women enter the workforce, they begin to affirm their rights over their own bodies and decision-making spaces entering the political arena.

As we reflect on the historical journey of women, it is clear that women's rights are not only about women; they embody the collective well-being of humanity. Education and empowerment are not merely tools for personal gain or capitalist success. Rather, they are essential for enhancing humanity as a whole. As we strive for true freedom, we must recognize that women's liberation is inextricably linked to the liberation of humanity. Inspiring figures like Wangari Muta Maathai, who championed environmental rights, Medha Patkar, who advocated for tribal rights, and Rosa Parks, who fought for racial equality, demonstrate that women's rights are intertwined with the rights of all marginalized communities and thus all humanity.

At Auxilium, we encourage young women to accelerate into action, promoting not just women's rights, but human rights. Supporting and uplifting young women through holistic education incorporating social commitment, we invest in a future more equitable, and a world more harmonious.

Together, we can create a brighter future for all.

SPOT TALK

THE GREEN CIRCLE

At Auxilium College if there's one place on campus that gets you instructed and entertained, it's the Green Circle. With tall trees offering the perfect shade, and a peaceful vibe, it's the go-to spot for students to study, or just take a break from classes.

On any given day, students can be found lounging with their books, chatting with friends, or simply enjoying a quiet moment alone. It's also the best spot on campus for clicking aesthetic pictures! The Green Circle never disappoints.

In the rush of college life, the Green Circle feels like a pause button, where deadlines, assignments, and lectures seem a little less overwhelming. The shade of the trees, the occasional chirping of birds, and the rustle of leaves make it the perfect escape.

If the Green Circle could talk, it would remind us that sometimes, the best moments in college aren't in classrooms or textbooks, they're right here, in the middle of it all, under the trees. This place is everything from meeting friends after college hours to last minute group study, just a few minutes before examination.
